NO STRIKE OF THE ANTHRACITE MINERS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York May 1.—It was announced today that a settlement had been reached between the anthracite miners and operators. This agreement is the result of conferences extending over a month and averts a strike involving 176,000 miners.
The adjustment comes at an eventful hour. The miners go into convention tomorrow in Pottsville, Pa. Had no settlement been made up to that time, the leaders would have called for a strike vote.
The new agreement, which grants the hard coal miners a wage increase amounting to between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 a year, and also an eight hour work day, will run until March 31, 1920. It was made public today.
The compromise was reached after many had given up hope for a settlement and had come to regard a strike affecting 176,000 men, as inevitable.

N. Y. HARBOR TUG ENGINEERS STRIKE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York May 1.—One of the worst labor tie-ups in the history of New York harbor began today when the tug engineers of practically every tug and lighter plying on Hudson and East Rivers and New York Bay went on strike for an increase of wages and recognition of the union. Only thirty tugs out of the 700 normally in commission are still in service. Before the strike was on half a dozen hours a congestion of freight had begun to appear. The strike affects cargoes valued at $25,000,000, many of which consist of war supplies for the allies.

HOTTEST DAY OF THE SEASON

April Heat Record on Sunday With Thermometers Registering as High as 90 Degrees—Thousands Took Advantage of the Fine Weather to Walk and Ride.

With thermometers registering as high as 90 degrees in the sun the heat record of the month of April was broken on Sunday, the last day of the month, when overcasts were shed and residents of Kingston found it preferable to sit out on the porch or in the back yards than stay inside the house.

A hint of the fine weather was promised on Saturday when for the first time in many days the sun peeped through and drove the storm clouds before it. While Saturday was an ideal April day yet Sunday was an ideal summer day, and thousands of the residents of Kingston took advantage of the weather to enjoy themselves.

Easter Sunday which had so carefully been laid away Easter Sunday on account of the rain was gotten out and the streets presented a gay sight with the host of pedestrians. All church services were well attended, and in the afternoon those who had automobiles or other vehicles took occasion to make trips through the surrounding country while many visited the Ashokan reservoir.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES.

Al Terpening, the Broadway motorcycle dealer, has sold a three speed twin cylinder Harley-Davidson motorcycle to Thomas Deegan of Rte. 9 street.

William O'Reilly, the Broadway news dealer, has just purchased one of the up-to-date six cylinder seven passenger touring cars made by the Reo Motor Car Company, of O. M. Kennedy, proprietor of the Central Garage.

McCormack in Poughkeepsie.

John McCormack, the world-famous Irish tenor, will give a song recital at the Cohen Theatre at Poughkeepsie on Wednesday evening of next week. Arrangements have been made whereby Kingstonians who wish to attend may go to and return from Poughkeepsie by boat, either by automobile or boat. For the Kingstonians who wish to make the trip by boat, the steamer "Z. B. Gardner" will make an excursion trip, leaving Rondout at 6 o'clock and returning leave Poughkeepsie immediately after the concert. For the accommodation of the automobilists from Ulster county who attend the concert, the Highland-Poughkeepsie ferry will make trips to Highland after the concert, so that there will be no difficulty for any desiring to reach home the same night. Charles H. Hickock of Poughkeepsie is in town Friday afternoon and made arrangements with E. Winter's Sons of John street for the local order for seats, and a copy of the seat-diagram showing the seats available was left there.

IRISH REBELLION STILL IN PROGRESS

Surrender Order of "President" Pearce is Not Obedied and Fighting Continues—Dublin Rebels Have Little Ammunition—Many Prisoners Taken.

London, May 1.—Although Peter Pearce, self-proclaimed "Provisional president of the Republic of Ireland," has ordered his followers to lay down their arms, fighting is still in progress at a number of points.

Information received here today from Kingstown stated that the rebels in Dublin had almost exhausted their supply of ammunition and that the fighting there had grown down to intermittent sniping.

Large bodies of troops supported by field artillery and machine guns were sent to Enniscorthy, 12 miles from Wexford, where the rebels refused to surrender.

Throughout Dublin and the suburbs the supply of food has become so low that poor families are threatened with famine. This is due to the fact that the railroads have been used the past six days for military purposes and no foodstuffs were sent into the Irish capital.

In official circles it is claimed that the revolt of the Sinn Feiners has been crushed. However, military law will be maintained in Ireland until order has been restored.

The declaration that German submarines were used as silibusters to land arms in Ireland is borne out by the statement of a British officer in Dublin that two German officers were found among the slain in the streets of the Irish capital. It was supposed that they too had been landed on the Irish coast by a U-boat.

Almost one thousand rebel prisoners are now in the hands of the British, among them many women. The principal woman captive is Countess Markiewicz. Women took a prominent part in the uprising. The Kingston correspondent of the Chronicle says that several English officers were shot in the back by women. One officer was killed by a woman who struck him over the head with a rifle butt.

It is impossible to estimate accurately the loss throughout the zones of fighting in the southeastern and western parts of Ireland, but it is expected to exceed $20,000,000. There was much looting. One correspondent describes scenes in Dublin in which poor women, whose ragged clothing was partly hidden by greasy shawls, wore diamond tiaras in their hair. These had been stolen from jewelry shops into which the rebels broke to secure material for street barricades.

Whether James Connolly, the commander-in-chief of the Republican army, is dead or only wounded is not officially known. He was originally reported to have been killed, but a later despatch said that he had been wounded in the thigh. This despatch added that Connolly, after his wound had been bound up, continued to direct the operations of his men until he became unconscious from pain and loss of blood.

Although no official figures as to casualties have been given out, the advice from the zones of fighting are now beginning to speak of "enormous losses." It is regarded as a certainty that the casualties on both sides up to Saturday were in excess of 500.

After the rebels evacuated St. Stephen's Green there were more than 100 wounded Sinn Feiners in the nearby building of the College of Surgeons.

Two officers and more than a dozen British soldiers fell while storming a rebel stronghold near the junction of Pembroke and Landsdowne roads. Inside the bodies of 19 Sinn Feiners were found.

Three soldiers were killed while capturing the former residence of Prof. Arthur Palmer in Haddington Road, on the outskirts of the Irish capital.

The foregoing incidents show how heavy the complete toll of casualties must have been.

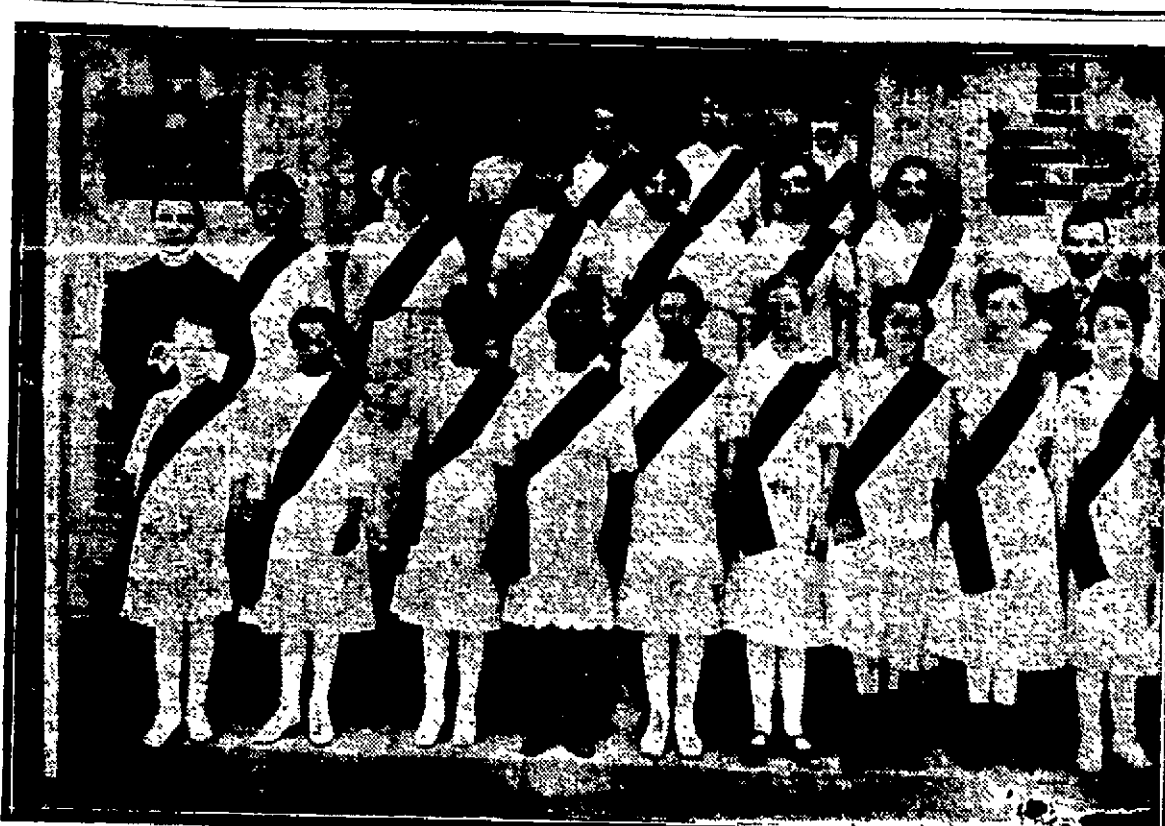

Throughout Sunday rifle and shell fire echoed through the blackened ruins about Sackville street. The British were shelling the building of the College of Surgeons above which the rebel flag was still flying.

The road from Trinity College to Westmoreland street over O'Connell Bridge and through Sackville street to Nelson's Pillar, is the broadest city thoroughfare in Europe and in normal times the most populous. From Tuesday to Saturday its sole occupant was a dead volunteer, whose body lay sprawled on the bridge.

The rebels had established a munition ship near the postoffice. A field gun was turned upon it and it was blown up. Eleven Sinn Feiners who ran from the building were shot dead in their tracks.

Pearce, the leader of the rebels, has sent instructions to the Sinn Feiners throughout the affected zones to give up their arms and constables are doing their best to disseminate this information in Galway, Clare, Wexford, Louth and Dublin counties.

Fires are still burning in Dublin but are under control as the fire brigade has been enabled to resume operations.

CANFIELD WANTS A LOW BRIDGE

May 1, 1916.
To the Editor of The Kingston Freeman.
Dear Sir:—The present bridge middle affords an opportunity for the right solution which is the same high bridge at Wurts street costing $320,000 should be abandoned and a roller lift bridge at the location of the Sleightsburgh ferry adopted at a cost of less than $95,000.
The objections to the high bridge are:
First—Its construction means a waste of a quarter of a million dollars. The fact that New York city pays $180,000 of this amount is not a legitimate argument.
Second—It would depreciate Rondout real estate values to the point of ruin.
Third—It would be an obstruction to masted vessels in the upper creek and an annoyance in view of the near completion of the barge canal, and incidental importance of water transportation, is a most serious matter.
Fourth—It would deprive the whole county of approximately twenty-five miles of improved state and county highways.
Fifth—It would take years to build. The roller lift bridge can be completed this season.
There is no valid objection to a roller lift bridge of 150 feet clear opening. Much larger and heavier bridges are operated in the heart of Chicago, which has a population of about one thousand times that of Kingston. For several months it would remain permanently closed. The operating expenses would not exceed $1,200 per year, including everything.
A bridge should be built, but $225,000 should not be thrown away and vested property interests should not be ruthlessly annihilated.

STELLE TAKES FIRST PRIZE

Edward Stelle, representing the Kingston high school, won first prize in the speaking contest held at the Lansingburgh high school at Troy, and brought the honors to Kingston, for the first time. At the former contests two Kingston speakers out of four secured second prize. By securing the unanimous decision of the judges at the contest in Troy, Mr. Stelle will be one of the contenders in the speaking contest held at Hamilton College on May 13. Mr. Stelle gives more credit to Miss Noon, under whose instruction he had prepared for the contest, than upon his own ability as a speaker. By taking this contest Kingston may claim the championship of the Hudson district, which includes some of the best high school speakers of this section of the country. The subject was, "The Source of Our Greatness."

At the time of the accident Mr. Eighmyer was turning from Broadway into Mill street while Mr. Draffen was on his way up Broadway. Mr. Draffen is a former resident of this city but now resides in Schenectady. He and his son, Russell, motored to Kingston on Saturday and spent the week-end with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. James Draffen, on West Union street. At the time of the collision they were on their way back to Schenectady.

James Mulligan went from Kingston to Albany in search of work. He failed to get it. The outcome was that Mulligan found himself up against the grim combination of hunger, thirst and exposure. He decided as a last resort to beg. He had collected a few cents when he was arrested. Saturday in police court Mulligan pleaded guilty to vagrancy. He told the court he had a brother living in Raritan and that he would go there if he was allowed to leave the court. Sentence was suspended.

AUTOMOBILE HITS FARM WAGON

Maillon Houghtaling of Hurley was badly cut and bruised when his wagon was struck and partially demolished Saturday evening by an automobile owned and driven by Samuel Affron of No. 22 East Union street at the corner of Manor avenue and Elmendorf street.

Mr. Houghtaling had been visiting his sister, Mrs. John Roosa, who resides on Albany avenue near the city line, and was on his way home. He was driving on Manor avenue and reached Elmendorf street at the same instant as Mr. Affron. There was an arc light on the corner. Affron was not going at a fast rate, and Mr. Houghtaling was driving very slowly. There was a lantern fastened to the side of the wagon and Mr. Houghtaling claims it was lighted. Affron says it was not lighted as he would have noticed a light.

The wagon and automobile were only a short distance apart when Affron noticed the wagon and applied the brakes. The automobile skidded and crashed into the wagon. The impact carried the wagon against the curb, smashing one wheel, and Mr. Houghtaling was thrown from his seat into the rear seat of the automobile, which was occupied by a party of Saugerties people. After stopping his car, Affron went back to look for Mr. Houghtaling but the members of his party in the car told him he was there.

Mr. Houghtaling was found to be badly cut and bruised and it was feared he had sustained internal injuries. The ambulance was summoned but he was removed to the Kingston City Hospital in the automobile of Dr. Harold Clarke. He was attended by Dr. Chandler and at the hospital it was stated today that his condition was good and he was setting along nicely.

The Saugerties party in the Affron automobile was composed of Mrs. Hyman, Mrs. Burhaus and son, Raymond Burhaus. When Mr. Houghtaling was catapulted into the automobile he struck Mrs. Hyman on the head, cutting her ear. After Mr. Houghtaling had been taken to the hospital, Affron resumed his trip to Saugerties. The damage to the automobile was slight. The wagon of Mr. Houghtaling was smashed and eggs and other farm produce were scattered over the street.

CORDIAL WELCOME TO LACE WORKERS

Mayor Canfield and Judge Clearwater Addressed Biennial Convention of Amalgamated Lace Operatives of America, Which Opened Lengthy Sessions in Measter's Hall Today.

Some seventy odd delegates, representing the thousands of employees in the lace-working industry throughout the United States, assembled this morning at Measter's Hall on Broadway for the biennial convention of the Amalgamated Lace Operatives of America, which opened for what may prove a two weeks' session of utmost importance to the trade generally. Kingston Branch, No. 8, A. L. O., is the host for the gathering and the program today opened with a brief business session, after which addresses of welcome were made by Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., and Judge Clearwater, both of whom made a most favorable impression and were most cordially received by the delegates.

President David Scott, of the national organization, presided and presented Mayor Canfield, who in informal remarks made the visitors welcome and told them something of the city, looking after which, he said, involved considerable attention from the officials. In humorous vein, the mayor compared himself to the man who was unable to find a pin which his wife had dropped on the floor as "the thing was pointed in one direction and headed in the other."

"Frequently I find myself pointed in one direction and headed in the other at the same time," declared the mayor amid laughter. Continuing he traced the history of the Colonial City back to the time when its advantages were first pointed out by Hendrick Hudson in 1609 and its selection as one of the three important trading posts on the Hudson by the Dutch East India Company.

Indian names and other historic items were interestingly presented by the mayor and he spoke of the city's growth since it became a city in 1872 as not a matter of spurts and bounds but a steady progress. He praised the organization of the lace-workers as a source of benefit to themselves as well as to the great industry which they represented, an industry of ancient origin whose followers were necessarily skilled and intelligent men. In conclusion, the mayor expressed his confidence in behalf of the city to the delegates throughout their stay and hoped that the hospitality of Kingston on this occasion would always prove a pleasant recollection to them in after years.

Following his remarks, the mayor was asked to present Judge Clearwater, which he did, saying that Kingston by reason of its age perhaps had numbered many distinguished men and women among its residents.

"But never," said the mayor, "has it ever had a more distinguished citizen than the one we have with us today, Judge Clearwater. Not only is he known through the city and the state, but throughout the nation. Not only as president of the State Bar Association and as a justice of the supreme court, but for his activities in other fields is he known. He could, I may say, have filled other offices and could have filled with distinction any office. Any gathering is always honored by the presence of Judge Clearwater."

Tony Seisco of East Kingston was arrested Saturday afternoon by Policeman Shadr on a charge of reckless driving. It seems that Tony while driving a horse and wagon nearly ran over a woman wheeling a baby carriage across Cornell street. This morning Recorder Lang informed Tony that he would have to be more careful in the future and that the fact that Tony had not been arrested before led him to give him one more chance and he discharged him.

Sheriff to Sell Property of Remington Motor Plant in Separate Lots Next Tuesday to Attract Small Bidders.

An innovation in spring sales is announced at the sheriff's office in connection with a levy made on property of the Remington Motor Company, the articles seized to be sold separately as by this procedure more bidders are attracted to the sales and better prices realized. At this sale of property, which will be held at the Remington Motor Company plant in this city Tuesday morning, May 2, at 10 o'clock, the sheriff is advertising the following articles:

Sixty-two frames, 290 rims, 6 bench vises, lots of bolts, nuts and parts, 2 drill presses, 6 Atwater-Kent distributors, 5 Atwater-Kent coils, 50 head lamps, 640 pieces of rubber hose for radiator, box of ammeters, lever tire pump, blacksmith forge and tools, anvil, 50 feet garden hose, grinder, lot of auto wheels, 150 jacks, two electric drills. There is enough material here to start a garage or repair shop and by selling separately the sheriff expects to attract bids from Kingston autoists.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1392—Dress or Apron With Bloomers for Girls—A Practical, Comfortable Play or School Suit.

This design will readily appeal to the busy mother who appreciates comfort and simplicity. The dress which may serve as an apron and the bloomers may be of the same material. The bloomers will take the place of petticoats. They are ideal for play and school wear, giving freedom of movement and fullness under the dress. For warmth, outing flannel, serge or flannel could be used. Gingham, galatea, percale, rep, poplin, linen and line are all appropriate materials. The pattern comprises both and is cut in 5 sizes: 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. It requires for a 6 year size 3 1/4 yards of 27-inch material, with 2 1/2 yards for the bloomers.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Why House Plants.

The psychological influence of growing plants on the child mind is of inestimable value. Then the mental sphere is particularly sensitive to everything. The sight of a tiny new frond, curled ever so tightly and carefully growing and developing day by day catches the attention of the children, and they come to watch it through the various stages of growth till one day, lo! its complete self, a perfect leaf, is revealed to their mental vision and their souls exult. They have beheld a miracle—Pansie Sprague Talbot in Good Health.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

When a man is his own enemy it's only because he's too much his own friend.—Oliver Twist.

There are certain polite forms and ceremonies which must be observed in civilized life, or mankind relapses into their original barbarism.

FOR THE TABLE.

In setting the table no matter how simple the equipment, there can be a daintiness and care in its arrangement which shows thought and love of the beautiful. No matter how poor one may be the air of neatness is always indicative of refinement. A simple centerpiece of green, a five-cent fern or a flower always adds beauty to the table. Then the conversation is most important; where there are children whose ideals must be formed, the table talk may be the means of shaping their entire lives. Petty gossip, criticism and time for general correction makes an otherwise pleasant meal most uncomfortable. Table manners should be taught to children, but example will do much, with an occasional kindly correction.

Come to the table in a bright and happy mood, keep the conversation in pleasant and instructive grooves. One of our great educators always had an atlas, an encyclopedia and a dictionary in the dining room to be consulted during the meal when it was necessary to use reference books. The children from that home went out with a broad and general education that could never have been acquired from books or college training.

In the tender years of a child's life impressions may be made, facts learned without conscious effort on his part, that will remain in the memory as long as the mind lasts. Wholesome food is one of the necessities of a well-balanced body, and wholesome thought is just as vital to a well-balanced mind. We believe these things and nod approval when they are spoken or written, but we get nowhere unless we ourselves work to accomplish results. We often hear remarks made of certain families of children, "they are so well-mannered, they were just born that way." The fact is, if those lives were investigated, that the parents have spared no pains or time, no comfort, to teach and train them. This training is not always seen, but it must be given to get good results.

With a Whoop! Children cause care, anxiety and trouble. Surely they do, and a little trouble is good for most people. It takes them out of themselves and removes the self-center. It was David Harrow who remarked, "Pleas are good for a dog because they keep him from broodin' on being a dog." The home that never has been entered with a whoop, a yell or a bawl is a sad place.

As New York Understands It. In one of New York's public schools the other day this sentence appeared in the reading lesson: "The king and his escort passed by." "Now," said the teacher, "who can tell me what is meant by an 'escort'?" A small, freckled-faced boy raised his hand, and in the vernacular of the East Side said: "It's a feller what's got a girl and he takes her out walking."

Festival Chorus, Attention!

Every member of the festival chorus, which is to give the oratorio of Elijah, is especially requested to be present at the next rehearsal to be held on Wednesday evening of this week at Symphony Hall, at 8 o'clock. It is hoped that as many members of the Mendelssohn Club as can do so will, now that their concert has been given, be present at the rehearsal. It is expected that Mr. Herschmann, baritone soloist, will be in town on Wednesday afternoon in conference with the Symphony Society and Mr. Coke-Jephcott. It is exceedingly important that from now on all rehearsals be attended.

Marguerite Clark For Federation.

Tomorrow at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium, and Wednesday at the Opera House will be "Federation" days at the moving picture shows. Through the courtesy of Manager Gildersleeve, the Federation of Women's Clubs are selling twenty-five cent tickets for "Out of the Drifts," a most dramatic, yet wholesome and remarkable play, in which fascinating Marguerite Clark is the star. The scene is laid in the snow-capped Alps, which is remarkable in itself. Already many tickets have been sold, for all who have been approached, feel that it is well worth twenty-five cents to see Marguerite Clark in any play. Fifteen cents of this twenty-five goes to the carrying forward the civic, educational and philanthropic work of the Federation. If you buy your ticket at the door, be sure and get a twenty-five cent one.

The Coterie.

The members of The Coterie were the guests of Mrs. Patchen for their meeting on Saturday. Miss Thompson had the first paper for the afternoon on "Dress versus Morality," in which the opinions of noted women were given. Extremes in fashion were criticized, and the fact was brought out that many women followed the dictates of fashion simply to be fashionable, without giving thought as to the serious side of the question. The subject of Miss Mabel Thompson's paper was "Will Polygamy Follow War?" and it was stated that when the program of the club was made out it was with the hope that the war would be at an end by the time that the subject would come up. There was shown to be a decided diversity of opinion as to the answer to the question. Miss Huber had an excellent paper on "Woman's Part in War," showing her service in Red Cross work and other activities of every sort. It was noted that suffrage matters had been laid aside for the greater question of serving suffering humanity. Finally it was made plain that woman's part in war was quite as hard, if not harder, than that of man. Mrs. O'Connor had the last paper for the day on "War Brides," which was in the nature of a reading presented in dramatic form. The social hour following was particularly enjoyed as a relief to the horrors of war as discussed and presented in the papers of the afternoon. The next and last meeting of The Coterie will be held on May 13, with Miss Huber.

NEW WINDOW TREATMENT.

Suggestions For Renewing Your Curtains, After Housecleaning.

New window treatment gives opportunity to make the most of cretonne—that most charming drapery stuff for summer rooms. There are long side curtains from rod to sill, made of flowered cretonne lined with tinted satin in the usual manner. These hang from a brass rod, which, instead of going straight across the window, bulges up in a curve at the center, where the valance is slurred over it. This valance is very full and is in two portions, each section six inches deep at the center of the window and ten inches deep at the outer side, where it meets the side curtain. Cords are run through the lower edges of the section and left unfastened, to be pulled up when the valance is adjusted.

When curtains and valance have been shifted to the pole and the pole set in place over the window, the outer lower corners of the valance are tucked to the side curtains under rosettes of the cretonne. The edges at the center, where the valance is divided and is only six inches deep, are tucked to the center. Next the cords are drawn up toward the center, tied and tucked out of sight. This draws up the sloping edges of the valance in puckered effect, and the drawn up valance brings forward the side curtain at the point of the rosette. The whole effect is dainty and graceful and suggestive of a French boudoir. Shades of the cretonne instead of ordinary window shades will complete a charming window treatment.

For the Chinese room or any other room where black and white is desirable for background effects, there is a new window curtain material of woven black and white checks in very open effect, like coarse net. Graduated black stripes in clusters cross the fabric, and smart looking curtains are arranged so that the black stripes come directly across valance and side curtains about six inches from the top of the window.

To Be Well Groomed.

The woman who is particular about her home is not always the best dressed, and it often happens that a woman whose home is tidily looking stunning in her street clothes. The points in dress that most women overlook are: collars, footwear, gloves, hats and handkerchiefs.

Be sure that your glove is properly proportioned, and when you decide on a well fitting style buy no other. Dust a little powder into your glove before you wear it, and smooth all the seams straight. Have the lines on the backs properly over the center of the hands and the fingers in the tips of the glove.

Keep your hats in their boxes until you wish to use them, and return them at once when you take them off. Always brush them, especially if they are made of black velvet or a dark material that shows the dust. Never carry a soiled or even crumpled handkerchief. It is only a little thing, but it is the little things that help toward complete beauty.

Fillet of Bass, General Joffe.

Remove the fillets from a good sized bass, place in a well buttered saucepan and add some minced shallots and minced fresh mushrooms; poach in white wine. When done place them on a plate and thicken the sauce with some kneaded good butter, so that it will remain light. Season with salt, pepper and minced chives. Garnish with small bouquets of shrimp.

Compensation.

"You men are not so smart," jeered the bachelor girl. "It takes you an hour to sew on a button." "It does," acknowledged the widower, who had served and been sewed for. "But that caution never comes off."—Judge.

CAPT. EMIL CARLSON AND ERIC DREDDEN.

REMI. FILM SEEING.

BERI-BERI EXHAUSTS TIFTON'S CREW, LEAVING CAPTAIN AND COOK TO RUN SHIP.

New York, May 1.—The American four-masted schooner Tifton has arrived in the harbor eighty-three days out from the west coast of Africa, with her crew all suffering from beri-beri. The men were not strong enough to furl the sails when the Tifton anchored off Stapleton.

Captain Emil Carlson, a middle aged mariner, who hails from Boston, said he had been pursued by bad luck the whole trip and never wanted to hear the word Africa again. The crew, which had been shipped in New York last October, were chiefly German refugees out of work, and if their countrymen on the battlefields of Europe were no better than they were then the Allies would make short work of them the skipper said.

For one month there were only himself and Fred Dreden, the cook, who were able to work the ship, as the others were all down with a mysterious sickness, which, he did not know was beri-beri until the Tifton reached quarantine and the doctor came on board.

"When only I and the cook were left," the skipper said, "we lashed the helm and ran before the weather when it was free. Sometimes the cabin boy felt well enough to take a trick at the wheel if the weather was fine, and then we trimmed sails. Off the Virginia Capes on April 15th we struck a gale and again. We had all sails set at the time, except the top sails, and had to let them blow away because there was no crew to stow them."

When the Tifton arrived off Sandy Hook and a tug boat took her in tow, Tom Merry, the mate, weighed 190 pounds, the skipper said, and was reduced to 100 pounds when he returned. The skipper said he had lost 40 pounds in weight himself and even Dredo, the schooner's pet black cat, was so weak from beri-beri that he had no strength to eat the flying fish when they dropped down on the deck alongside of him in the night when the vessel was lazily wallowing in the doldrums.

The doctor of quarantine said that the crew of the Tifton would all recover and that their liberal use of quinine had probably kept them alive until they reached port.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 1, 1916.

It is becoming evident that the papers seized by United States Government agents when they arrested Wolf von Igel of the German Embassy staff in New York recently are of much more importance than the public was at first led to believe. The fact that Ambassador von Bernstorff demanded the return of the papers but refused to identify them as German property is most significant. The only reasonable explanation of his conduct is that he knows that the documents prove that embassy employes have been promoting criminal plots. It is learned from semi-official sources that von Igel was conspiring not only to blow up American industrial plants, but Government buildings as well. This is infinitely more serious than plotting in this country to dynamite Canadian property, although the latter is bad enough. It is unwise to draw conclusions prematurely, but it is difficult to avoid believing that representatives of the German Government have been acting in a manner which diplomats describe as unfriendly to the United States. Such things cannot be overlooked. We may pardon an enemy who throws stones through our window, but there is no forgiveness for the occupant of our guest chamber who sets our house on fire. There is much apprehension regarding the outcome of the submarine dispute, but, big as that issue is, it is not unlikely to be dwarfed by the developments following the von Igel episode.

The newest plot confession to implicate leading Germans tells the story of plans whereby 150,000 Germans and German-Americans who have served in the German army were to gather for an invasion of Canada this spring. Most of the soldiers were to start from points along the New York-Canadian border. Various rendezvous had been selected to which the expeditionary soldiers would make their way on receiving the necessary instructions, and then having been supplied with topographical maps they would march to boats ready to convey them to the Canadian shore, arms being supplied after they were on the water. Max Lynar, who made the confession, has been convicted of bigamy in New York. "The matter of arms did not bother us," he says, "for anyone who has the money can buy guns and munitions in this country." He finally forsook the plotters and disclosed his information to army officers. His most significant statement is that the German reservists are now organized and ready to take up arms against the United States in case of trouble with Germany. Legislative laxity, he said, has resulted in laws which attempt to regulate possession of arms but, not their sale, and Lynar's statement regarding the ease with which arms can be purchased is too true. Our laws regulating the possession of arms were constructed with good intentions, but their practical effect is to embarrass good citizens without disturbing rogues.

Our local pride was sorely wounded when it was pointed out recently by State officials that the Ulster county jail lacked shower-baths, so that the distinguished gentlemen under detention were obliged to use ordinary tubs for their ablutions. Just like common people. Our shame is now somewhat lessened by the discovery that we are not the only sinners. A representative of the State Prison Association has just reproached Sheriff Hurd of Rockland County for feeding his prisoners fresh bread, which is considered injurious to the digestive organs of gentlemen temporarily deprived of active exercise. Of course, this horrible condition of affairs will be remedied at once by the substitution of stale bread. The reform movement progresses rapidly now-a-days, and soon every prisoner will have hot-house strawberries for breakfast and some light, nourishing food like canvas-back duck for dinner.

The Mann "white slave" act has been invoked by a gang of blackmailers to compel metropolitan visitors of loose morals to disgorge. The business of the gang is well organized and profits evidently have been big. As long as the Mann act remains in force blackmailing may be expected to continue under its protection, and prosecution of the blackmailers will prove difficult. The white slave act was enacted as a Federal statute when State legislation should have been a matter of no great difficulty. Where uniform legislation on any subject is proposed for different States, however, usually the legislators of one State can be found who attempt to nullify the entire plan by creating a situation which places their territory in a distinct class, which to the law-breaker or law-evader extends the same welcome as an oasis, but to a large extent this custom has been overcome. The States which try to attract people by offering inducements of this character may apparently gain financially, but this effect is only temporary and the inevitable loss of reputation more than counter-balances any benefit derived. The Mann act, whose general idea is most commendable, is another illustration of laws passed in response to public demand created under excitement. In the haste of closing the barn door while horses are being stolen frequently the windows are left unguarded for the unrestricted admittance of thieves.

Preparedness.

One of the freshmen at Yale immediately applied to the proper officer of the university upon the day of his entrance into the institution for information touching his father's stay there before him. "I should like to see my father's record," he said. "He was in the class of '75." "I shall be glad to show you the record," said the officer, "but have you any special reason for consulting it?" "Well," said the youth, "when I left home dad told me not to disgrace him, and I wish to see just how far I can go."—Boston Post.

Getting Around It.

Green had been in new lodgings just one week, and had arrived at the conclusion that his tenacity would not be of long duration unless there was a material difference in the quality of the breakfast egg. He did not like to tell the landlady about method of communicating his opinion on the subject. "Didn't you tell me you were fond of reading Macaulay, Mrs. Bluff?" he asked her, as he broke the shell of the egg. "It was my lamented's favorite reading, Mr. Green," returned the landlady. "Ah! Now I understand why you have your eggs from Italy." "Whatever makes you think that, sir?" "Really!" exclaimed Green, with a very pronounced sniff. These eggs remind me forcibly of 'The Lays of Ancient Rome.'—Rochester Times.

Kate Sanborn Tells This One. Kate Sanborn has recalled a blow to her vanity, as follows: "I asked," she says, "the carpenter to adorn a weather-beaten door with some putty and a coat of paint. ## Lovers of Chickens.

Dr. Elijah E. Hoss, the Methodist bishop, said at a dinner in Muskogee: "The Methodist minister is noted all over the world for his love of chicken. "Once, when I was stationed in Knoxville, I wanted a pair of chickens for our Sunday dinner, and so I called on a suburban farmer's wife whose fame as a chicken raiser was remarkable. "There had been a Methodist conference in Knoxville that week, and when I told the farmer's wife the nature of my errand she shook her head. "I'm sorry, Dr. Hoss," she said, "but all my chickens have already entered the ministry."—New York Times.

Just that. No one who heard Helen Clark sing with her Diamond Disc records at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday night can find any other adequate word for Edison's wonderful achievement.

The EDISON Diamond Disc

THOMAS A. EDISON has spent five years and over two million dollars in research work to accomplish the actual and vivid Re-Creation of music as distinguished from its mechanical and only approximate reproduction. His work accomplished, it was characteristic of the man that he should invite the unheard of test of having artists sing in comparison with his re-creation of their voices. Numerous great artists have participated in these tests. On Thursday night, Miss Helen Clark, the celebrated concert contralto, appeared before more than seven hundred music lovers of this city.

they could tell whether they were hearing the radiant woman on the stage before them—or Edison's Re-Creation of her beautiful voice.

What Will You Have in Your Music Room?

This wonderful new invention—for one of the mechanical devices for the reproduction of sound, which we have learned to call talking machines?

Will you come and hear for yourself? Edison already has nearly one thousand examples of his new art of Re-Creating music. His laboratories are producing new selections weekly. No voice, no form of music is beyond him. The entire field of music is at the command of Edison's wondrous new art.

SISTER KILLED BY BROTHER

Eleven Year Old Boy Fatally Shoots His Nine Year Old Sister While at Play at Home in Pine Grove—Did Not Know Gun Was Loaded.

Little Leona May Mower, the nine year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Mower of Pine Grove, was shot and killed by her eleven year old brother Everett, on Saturday afternoon while the parents were in Saugerties.

The brother and sister, with several young companions, were at play near the Mower home amusing themselves shooting deer, using sticks in the place of guns. While the fun was at its height, Everett decided to make the game appear more real and went into the house for a gun which he knew was there. The boy did not know the gun was loaded and when he returned with it he pointed it at his sister and pulled the trigger. The charge exploded and the little girl dropped shot through the neck. Death was almost instantaneous. The coroner was notified and Dr. James Krom was authorized to make an investigation which disclosed the fact as given.

FARM POULTRY

HOUSE FOR GROWING FOWLS

Structure Should Be of Open Front to Insure Fresh Air and Dryness Through Ventilation.

The house accommodations for the growing birds are very important. The house should, of course, be of the open front type to insure fresh air and dryness through good ventilation. It is very desirable to have the house large enough and high enough for a man to enter. This will guarantee more convenient in cleaning or catching the birds. It is also highly desirable that the house be portable so that it may be moved about. In this way the young fowls can be isolated from the older stock, which is a desirable plan. The birds can then be moved out on a pasture, stubble field or orchard, and thus have the advantage of clean ground where they will not be so liable to contract disease which might be among the old flock or on the ground occupied by it. Then, too, the young stock is interfered with considerably at feeding time and do not have a fair chance if larger fowls are about.

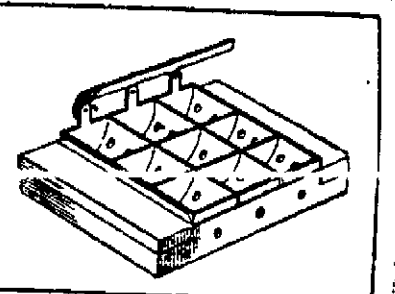

If colony laying houses are used on the farm, these same houses, if portable, can be used for the growing chickens. Or, a good growing colony house could be built 6x8 feet in size with an ordinary shed roof and open front. This house could be used later as a laying house to accommodate about twenty hens.

TURNING EGGS IN INCUBATOR

Dozen or More Rolled Over at Single Operation by Means of Device Just Recently Invented.

One of the many little tasks which must be looked after with more or less regularity in the hatching of chickens in the incubator, is the turning over of the eggs and upon this depends to a great measure the success of the hatching. The eggs must be turned over regularly, carefully and with great consideration for the feelings of the chick which may or may not be inside. If the operation is insufficiently done it is just as disastrous as when it is overdone. It must be done just right. If the operator is in undue haste the chances are that a whole batch of prospective chicks will show their resentment of the harsh treatment by dying in the shell.

A recent invention provides for the performance of this operation in the most approved manner. The eggs all repose in small semi-circular compartments arranged in rows, each row being capable of an oscillating movement so that one turn of a lever at the side of the tray gives all the eggs of the tray a half turn, which is just the required amount of rocking demanded by the little chick in its natural cradle.

RIGHT MARKET FOR POULTRY

During Holiday Season Many Poultrymen Shove Stock Forward, Leaving Their Pops Bare.

The holiday season offers the largest market for all kinds of poultry, but then, too, the supply is also very large as many poultrymen shove their poultry out to the market then, leaving their pens bare for further selling. This has its advantage in closing up that part of the business and getting the price in the pocket and into use, but sometimes all poultry is not in its best condition at that time.

There often happens to be late poultry, even in pretty well regulated poultry yards. This late stock is not as large and plump as the older stock is, and hence it will not fetch the price the heavier will, unless it may be chickens that are ready for broilers. These nearly always net a big price per pound, although the numbers of pounds is hardly a plural, a pound and a half being about right.

GREEN FEED IS IMPORTANT

Essex Rape or Winter Legumes, or Some Other Vegetable Feed Must Be Given Poultry.

All poultry, to do well, must have green feed and unless they have access to winter rye or other grain, Essex rape or winter growing legumes or some other vegetable feed must be supplied.

Leaves of clover, alfalfa, soy beans or cowpeas, if soaked and sprinkled with bran or shorts, will make a good substitute. Lacking these, mangels, beets, cabbage or turnips, either shredded fine or hung where the birds can get at them, will help.

Common yellow pumpkins, too, are good.

Unsympathetic.

Our little girl is fond of sympathetic people and showed a slight cut on her finger to her older sister, who said, "O, that will soon heal." The little miss said, "You are so unsympathetic you haven't a bit of sorriest in you."

How a Duelist Was Eliminated

By ELINOR MARSH

During the reign of Louis XIII. France was one vast dueling ground. Duelling was especially in vogue in the army. A practice of this sort is, of course, sure to be abused. A good swordsman who desired to be rid of one who stood in his way would pick a quarrel with him and kill him. Then, too, there were men who had a passion for killing other men.

Mlle. Louise d'Alger, a girl of that period, very beautiful much beloved, was a resident of Paris. One of her relatives, a young man of great promise, was killed in a duel, and his death rendered her very bitter against the custom. She could not understand why when a man was challenged by a person who was perfectly capable of killing him and intended to kill him the victim should be considered bound in honor to accept the challenge. Nevertheless such was the custom of the times, and the challenged party had to choose between death and social ruin.

At this time in Paris was a man who had been "fou" a great many times and, always killed his antagonist. Scarcely a week passed but it was announced that some man prominent socially had fallen before his sword. A terror fell upon mothers, sisters and lovers lest one whose life was precious to them would be added to his victims. For a time it was hoped that some man more skillful than he would put him out of the way. But not one of the most admirable fencers in Paris seemed disposed to tackle him, and he did not trouble any of them.

Louise d'Alger declared that any means of getting rid of the Scourge, as he was called, would be excusable and wondered why some man did not stab him in the back. She was told that one who would do that would be regarded as a murderer.

"But," she replied, "he commits murder all the while."

"True, but there is no law to punish him. Should any one stab him in the back the person doing so would fall under the ban of the statute covering murder. Besides, he would be ostracized by his friends."

There seemed no justice, but great injustice, in this to Mlle. d'Alger, and she could not divert her mind from a feeling that such an enormity was suffered to exist merely by opinion. She brooded upon it till it seemed to her that she must do something to stop the Scourge's murders, just as Charlotte Corday at a later period did France of Marat.

Mlle. d'Alger possessed a fortune and though she was not noble, held a high position in Paris society. One day she received invitations to a ball to be given by her. What was the Scourge's surprise to receive an invitation. He was not accustomed to receiving invitations unless he dropped in to see some one of the family about to entertain that he would like one. Then the bid was forthcoming, for a refusal would be regarded as an insult and would cost a life. The Scourge was much flattered at receiving Mlle. d'Alger's invitation without any action on his own part. Then, too, he inferred that possibly she had fallen in love with him.

When he appeared among Mlle. d'Alger's guests every one was astonished. The hostess had no man relative through whom he might have forced an invitation and it was not to be expected that she would invite him of her own free will. All eyes were turned upon her when the duelist entered the ballroom stepped up to her to make the formal greeting due the hostess, and every one marvelled at her cordial reception of him.

The Scourge was beside himself with pride and arrogance at having been invited to the house of a lady of prominence in face of the prejudice, as he called it, of all Paris. The first few dances he chose for partners some lady who had a brother, well knowing that she would not dare refuse him. Later he made his bow to the hostess. She smiled upon him graciously and took position on the floor beside him.

Every eye was turned upon the couple. Mlle. d'Alger's views with regard to duelling were well known, and no one knew of any way by which he could force such cordial treatment. Could it be that she had been fascinated by this man on account of the power he possessed through his sword?

When in the dance the Scourge took his partner's hand in his he felt something prick his finger. He paid no attention to it. Indeed, he could not well do so under the circumstances. Then he was seen to stagger and raise his hand to his head. Instead of conducting his partner to another locality in the room he tottered away by himself, but before he had gone a dozen steps sank down upon the floor. A circle formed about him, all wondering what could have happened to him.

Mlle. d'Alger called for lackeys and directed them to carry out the fallen man who was already dead. Then turning to her guests said:

"Let not this episode interfere with your amusement."

She gave a sign to the musicians, who played another dance.

No investigation was made as to the cause of the death of a man that all Paris hated and feared. On one of his fingers something like a pin prick was noticed, from which had exuded a drop of blood. It was known that his partner wore a ring on the hand he clasped, the setting of which was turned inward.

Clever Deduction.

"That fellow evidently quit smoking a short time ago," Doctor Watson gave Sherlock Holmes an attentive ear and proceeded to his part of the play-act. "Way." "He is getting so much enjoyment out of that cigar he is smoking now."

Making Opportunites

Opportunities come to those who make them.

This is especially true in business—and a mighty good thought for today.

We are now in an era of expansion.

Factories are driving hard. Labor is in demand. Incomes are rising.

Today holds the opportunity

ity of a life-time for the man who will make it.

Particularly does this go for the man with something to sell.

People are in a buying mood.

Business is ripe. The man who sees this is going after it. He is advertising, as the columns of this newspaper will show, and getting results.

Prodigality of Life in Ancient Egypt.

The reckless prodigality with which in ancient Egypt the upper classes squandered away the labor and lives of the people is perfectly startling. In this respect, as the monuments yet remaining abundantly prove, they stand alone and without a rival. We may form some idea of the almost incredible waste when we hear that 2,000 men were occupied for three years in carrying a single stone from Elephantine to Sais, that the canal of the Red sea alone cost the lives of 120,000 Egyptians and that to build one of the pyramids required the labor of 300,000 men for twenty years.—Westminster Gazette.

Parricides in France.

The French penal system, following more closely the Roman law than does the English, has special provisions for parricides. Formerly the criminal's right hand was amputated, and if he were a man he was then broken at the wheel. A woman was burned. Today the parricide is consigned barefooted to the guillotine. He has a white robe and on his head a black veil. Besides these indignities he is required to bear the sentence read in public by the clerk of the court at which he was condemned. Under the Roman law the patria potestas obtained, and in France it is effective today in a modified form, hence parricide is considered a horrible crime.—London Globe.

LEADER OF IRISH REVOLT AND BRITISH COMMANDER SENT TO SUPPRESS IT.

May Gen. Sir John Maxwell, former commander of the British forces in Egypt, has landed in Ireland with British troops to suppress the Irish revolution which started in Dublin several days ago. John Maxwell, professor in the National University of Ireland, and leader of the Irish volunteers, is supposed to have 3,000 armed men under his command in Dublin alone. It is said that the number of volunteers in the country immediately surrounding Dublin totals close to 60,000.

Curious Tombstones.

On a graveyard in the parish churchyard of Great Yarmouth, England, there is sculptured the unusual representation of a clown seated in a tub which is being drawn down a river by two swans. Beneath this stone lies one of the many victims who were drowned years ago by the collapse of a iron suspension bridge on which they had crowded to see a clown pass underneath in the manner described. The feat, which was a novel form of advertisement by a traveling circus, was actually performed, but the rush of people from one side of the bridge to the other after the man had passed under caused the tragic ending.

Her Rule.

"Leave my heart at your feet." The proud beauty smiled and pointed to a pile of hearts.

Origin of the Mastiff.

Mastiff is a term applied to a very large and powerful species of the canine family, and there is considerable conflict of opinion regarding the origin of the word. Some claim that it is derived from the Italian mastino or the French mastin, both of which signify large limbed. This word, they say, was gradually corrupted into mastiff. A Lincolnshire expression meaning very large, muscular or big, until it gradually assumed its present form. Others again say its true origin is the old German masten, to fatten, because the mastiff is a large dog and so seems better fed than any other.—London Field.

Make Children Happy.

The first duty toward children is to make them happy. If you have not made them happy you have wronged them. No other good they may get can make up for that.—Charles Burton.

A LONDON SPEAKER

The Hon. Mrs. Bertrand Russell in Relief Work.

DAUGHTER OF A QUAKERESS.

Another Suffragist Has Left England to Tour the United States in Behalf of Hospital Units, Cottage Homes For Babies and Telling Mothers.

Hon. Mrs. Bertrand Russell has left for English work, schools for mothers, in the hands of the Duchess of Marlborough in order to make a two months' flying trip to the United States on behalf of the suffering women and children of Europe. Mrs. Russell is at present speaking in Atlantic seaboard cities about "Why English Women Need the Vote in Time of War."

She has been a lifelong suffrage worker and made her first speech in the Yellowstone National park when she was only sixteen. For, in spite of her present English position Mrs. Russell is an American woman, the daughter of a famous Quakeress of Pennsylvania.

THE HON. MRS. BERTRAND RUSSELL. Hannah Whitall Smith, one of the great suffrage pioneers of America and friend of Frances Willard and Lady Henry Somerset. Hannah Whitall Smith was well known to the last generation as a religious writer and social reformer. Mrs. Russell entered Bryn Mawr in its first class in 1883, the year it opened. After her graduation she worked for temperance under the training of her mother's two friends, the latter training coming after her marriage in England to Hon. Bertrand Russell, the philosopher.

Mrs. Russell began the schools for mothers, for which she is widely known, in 1907, after she had studied similar social experiments in Ghent. She and a group of Englishwomen have carried on this training of mothers before and after the birth of their children, in order to decrease the great infant mortality in the congested parts of London.

At the outbreak of the war the suffrage societies of the British Isles turned themselves into relief agencies, the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies being the society with which Mrs. Russell has worked. It has maintained hospital units, cottage homes for babies and help for tolling mothers, establishing labor bureaus through England and teaching efficiency to girls who have been called upon to fill new posts.

SPRING FASHIONS.

A Description of the New Russian Blouse So Popular.

Among the new blouses is a most alluring model called the "tunic." Of course it is Russian in type, and its important feature is an extension below the waist line, which gives the long, Russian tunic effect. This extension is either gathered or circular and falls from a trim belt to midway between hip and knee. Worn over a separate skirt of harmonizing material, the new Russian blouse gives the effect of a complete costume. The idea is a practical one, for any woman can furnish the simple, well cut skirt and purchase one of these smart blouses to complete a really stunning new frock.

In some of the smartest new waist models color is combined with white, either in the fabric itself or by the use of different materials, such as sheer silk crepe and taffeta or crepe and wash satin. Very striking models in these color combinations are the waists with a two inch stripe, alternating with a stripe of sheer silk crepe in a similar width.

HOW

To Plan the Vegetable Garden and Plant It

CAREFUL planning while the frost is still in the ground is a test of the successful gardener. The garden planned a month or more in advance of first real spring days is the one from which the best results are usually obtained. In fact, many of the most desirable products of the garden are those which demand a week or two gentle warming indoors, or under the glass of the hotbed. Then, too, the man with a limited amount of garden space will find it well worth his while to lay his plans well in advance.

By consulting the garden manual and giving attention to seasons of maturity he will be able to lay out his garden so as to be able to utilize every inch of space during almost the entire season. If he does not draw up his plans before he begins to cultivate he will undoubtedly find that much valuable space has been lost through lack of forethought.

Certain vegetables grow best during the spring and early summer, while from others the best results are gained by late plantings. In many cases the soil used for the early vegetables can be resown later in the season, with later, or warm weather, vegetables. The gardener should acquaint himself with these conditions.

Beans and corn, for example, will flourish during almost the entire spring and summer. The first planting of these vegetables should be made about the beginning of May. Peas may be planted in April. From then until the 1st of August plantings should be made about every two or three weeks. This will insure the gardener a seasonable supply of these vegetables throughout the season.

A SPRING TIP.

How to Plan and Win Success in Your Gardening.

There are few things more fascinating than the development of a well planned garden. True, it will mean many hours' manual labor to prevent the weeds and insects from ruining your early spring labors, and the watering can or the garden hose will have to be called into use frequently. But labor will pay large dividends in benefits to the gardener, to say nothing of the reduction in the weekly budget of the household.

The tomato vines will need to be tied up and watched for cut worms, the corn will have to be hoed and so will the beans; the lettuce will have to be transplanted and the beets thinned out, and there will be a hundred and one other precautions that will have to be taken to insure the proper results; but each operation will have its special benefits and lessons that will more than repay for the trouble.

And during the development of his garden the wise gardener will note his successes and defeats and store that information away for use the following year. Every failure will be an experience to be avoided the following year, and every success an experience to be repeated again. He will learn much for himself, and every bit of knowledge gained in that way will be worth a whole chapter written for his benefit by some one else.

HOW TO PROTECT YOUR

PIANO.—Half the pianos of this country catch colds exactly as we do. They get hoarse or have a cough or a stiff note or some similar complaint, which cannot be cured by home remedies, but which requires tedious and expensive doctoring. In order to prevent these avoidable ailments a piano should be kept in a moderately warm room, where the temperature is even, say 60 or 70 degrees; the year round, not cold one day and hot the next. The instrument should not, however, be too near the source of heat. It should be kept closed and covered with a felt cloth when not in use, particularly in frosty weather. Always place the piano close to but not against an inside wall.

How to Fix Tears in Bronze Kid Shoes

When the Children Stub Them. Often when bronze kid shoes are almost new a small piece of the kid will get torn off or turn up and still remain hanging to the shoe. Straighten out the wrinkles; moisten the glue side of a postage stamp or envelope flap, apply quickly to both raw sides of the kid, press into place and hold firmly for a few minutes. The glue of the stamp or envelope flap is so evenly spread that there is no surplus, amount to run on to the outside of the kid, making it sticky. This can also be used to mend most any kind of soft kid shoes.

How to Treat a Bad Headache That Comes From Nerves.

In cases of violent headaches it frequently acts as a great relief to bathe the forehead with a sponge wrung out of very hot water. Repeat this as often as the sponge cools. When the head feels rested dash on cold water, wipe dry and lie down for awhile, keeping the eyes closed. Next sit up and turn the head around from side to side slowly until tired. This will have a wonderfully beneficial effect on the circulation and will ward off headache if persisted in.

What the Engineers are Doing

THIRTY thousand American engineers are making a card index survey of American industry so that it may be prepared for its vital part in defending the Country, if need comes. The past eighteen months have taught us here in America what lack of industrial preparedness has meant to some of the countries now at war. These nations had the ships and they had the men; but when the hour struck, their factories were not able to furnish the colors with arms and shells and powder. Their factories were not prepared. And our factories are not prepared.

But it is not enough to draw a moral. In the United States five great Engineering Societies—Civil, Mining, Mechanical, Electrical and Chemical—have pledged their services to the Government of the United States, and are already working hand in hand with the Government to prepare industry for the national defense. They receive no pay and will accept no pay. All they seek is opportunity to serve their country, that she may have her industries mobilized for defense.

All elements of the nation's life—the manufacturers, the business men, and the workingmen—should support this patriotic and democratic work of the engineers, and assist them cheerfully when asked. There can be no better national insurance against war.

The Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, representing all advertising interests have offered their free and hearty service to the President of the United States, in close co-operation with these five Engineering Societies, to the end that the Country may know what the Engineers are doing. The President has accepted the offer. The Engineers have welcomed the co-operation.

This advertisement, published without cost to the United States, is the first in a nation-wide series to call the country to the duty of co-operating promptly and fully with the Engineers.

PRaise FOR SOCIAL SERVICE BUREAU

What Prominent Residents of Kingston Think of the Work That It Has Done and Its Future Usefulness.

Today is Social Service Day. The bureau is winding up a very successful membership campaign which during the last two weeks has made an effort to draw into the organization every charitably inclined man and woman in Kingston.

It is said that procrastination is the greatest fault of civilization. "Put off until tomorrow what you don't have to do today," is the motto of a good many well-intentioned people, and of course we all know the places where the good intentions are used for paving stones.

Stop paving hell and help build up heaven. (Sounds like Billy Sunday.)

If you haven't sent your dollar to the Social Service Bureau send it right away. The address is O'Reilly street. Just slip the dollar and your name in an envelope and address it as soon as you lay The Freeman down.

The membership list will be kept open a few more days before publication to let those people in who have meant to come in all along.

Read what some of our prominent people think about Social Service work:

I have never had any doubts about the benefits and advantages of such an organization. From facts that have come under my observation since the bureau is in existence, I am certain it fills a long-felt want.—Morris Block.

I consider the Bureau of Social Service the regulation of the charitable disposition of the people of the town.—C. B. Cragin.

The Sunshine Society co-operates with the Bureau of Social Service and finds it a great help.—Mrs. W. Scott Gillespie.

The work being done by the bureau is of inestimable value to the city of Kingston. Every person in town should become a member.—Henry R. DeWitt.

A most efficient way of arranging for consistent assistance.—Mrs. C. Gordon Reel.

I believe the bureau is doing a great deal of good, and I am heartily in accord with the work of the same.—George Burgevin.

The Social Service Bureau is a great boon to Kingston. Much good can be accomplished through its help.—Grace C. Higginson.

Everybody who gives anything at all to the poor ought to give it through the Social Service Bureau. It is practical, systemized, business-like charity.—John D. Schoonmaker.

A mighty good organization. Every one should help.—Frederick Snyder, M. D.

It is a great convenience. Relieves individual members of all responsibility.—M. H. Preston.

Preparedness is the slogan of the Social Service Bureau. Its trained workers battle successfully with the social uplift problem of our city with the least possible expenditure of time and energy of its army of members. Join the army.—Mrs. Edgar T. Shultis.

One of the most important institutions of the city and should have the general support of Kingston people.—Herbert Carl.

Best wishes for the success of the work.—A. D. Rose.

Enclosed find my contribution toward your splendid work.—Thomas J. O'Hara.

I believe you are on the right road to assist the worthy ones of our city. Success is assured under the proposed system.—Chas. A. Schermerhorn.

The best scheme I ever heard of. If I can help in any further way let me know.—C. A. Winter.

We believe in the bureau as the right sensible and business way of handling the charitable work of the city.—C. H. Safford & Co.

I am sure you are doing a most wonderful work for the poor and unfortunate ones of our city. May the dollars pour in to you.—Mrs. E. L. Barnum.

This comes the nearest to being a military system of handling charity, so I think it is the best.—Major George Chandler.

Nothing succeeds these days that is conceived in a spirit of haphazardness and carried out in an unsystematic manner. In order that any forces for good can act with forceful and goodly effect there must be organization. This applies to charity above all things. I am convinced that Kingston made no mistake when it organized the Bureau of Social Service.—Palmer Canfield, Jr., Mayor.

FAREWELL SERMON BY PASTOR SNYDER

The Rev. Howard E. Snyder preached his farewell sermon to one of the largest audiences ever gathered together in the edifice of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on Wurts street on Sunday evening. Not only was the church crowded with the members of the congregation, but a number of the many friends of Pastor Snyder were present. The Young Men's Brotherhood, of which Pastor Snyder was the founder, and a troop of Boy Scouts, marched in and occupied seats in the front of the church that had been reserved for them.

Pastor Snyder thanked the congregation for their loyalty and hearty co-operation during the years he had been their pastor, and he preached a powerful and eloquent sermon, his parting advice being to look for the good and not the bad in our fellow-men.

At the close of the church services Pastor Snyder was escorted to the West Shore station by the Boy Scouts and the Young Men's Brotherhood, where a large number of people had gathered to bid farewell to a man who during his pastorate in this city has always taken an active part not only in the religious but the civic life of the city.

The attendance at the farewell service at the church and the gathering of people at the railroad station was an enlightening glimpse of the good work that has been accomplished in this city by Pastor Snyder, who will be missed not only by the members of his own congregation but by the many others with whom he has come in contact.

Pastor Snyder left on the Buffalo for the west, where he will take up his new field of work. He carries with him the good will of the residents of this city.

May Buy Keator Property.

Negotiations for the purchase of the Dr. H. C. Keator residence on Maiden Lane by Dr. Mark O'Meara are under way and the property will probably be bought by Dr. O'Meara. The deal is being made through the agency of the Shattuck Realty Company. Dr. O'Meara's office and residence is at present located on Broadway and if the Keator property is purchased he will move to that place. When asked as to whether the deal had been made an official of the Shattuck company stated that all arrangements had not been completed.

NOTED SOCIETY LEADER ILL AFTER OPERATION.

New York, May 1.—It has been learned that Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, the noted society leader, has been removed to her country home at Jericho, L. I., where she is seriously ill after an operation which was performed several days ago.

Mrs. Vanderbilt has been declining rigorously for some time and has reduced herself noticeably. Her friends think that she may have weakened herself in this way and that the operation may have proved more serious on that account.

The marriage of her daughter, Miss Barbara Rutherford, to Cyril Hatch, has been set for some time, in May, unless her mother's illness continues, when the date may have to be changed.

Showers of Help

Like the April showers that proverbially bring forth the pretty May flowers, The Freeman Want Ad showers this month of April bring forth the full bloom of help for May needs.

There are many of these, but the two principal ones are the realty, renting and buying needs and the needs of moving day.

Have you done anything to help yourself overcome the perplexities that accompany these annual exigencies? If not, it is time to begin right away by using The Freeman Want ads frequently and reading them every day this month of April.

The Kingdom.

The kingdom of heaven is at hand in your consciousness. Why do you not reveal it? Why do you let the beggarly things of intellect hide away this pearl of great price within you? Are these fleeing things of sense, that are yours today and someone else's tomorrow, next month, or next year, of more value than possession everlasting? What are you striving for, anyway?—Unity.

Emigrated to Coyote Corners.

"Crimson Gulch has improved a whole lot since I was here last," remarked the traveling man. "Yes," replied Broncho Bob, "nobody plays cards for money, nor drinks intoxicating liquors here." "And the town is perfectly quiet on Sunday?" "Perfectly. And Saturday night, too. The whole town goes over to Coyote Corners, which village is wide open."—Washington Star.

Solomon Might Answer.

A paragrapher asks why it is that the man with a short, plump neck always wears a shut-in collar to hide it, while the man with a turkey neck and a big Adams apple always wears a low, turnback collar that gives you a splendid view of the scenery south of his chin, and why is it that the pigeon-toed man wears the whitest and most conspicuous shoes? And the bow-legged girl the shortest of skirts?—

OUTLOOK IS SPLENDID

So Says John K. Tener, President of National League.

Never Have Prospects Been Brighter in National Pastime—Baseball War Brought About Some Deplorable Conditions.

(By JOHN K. TENER, President of the National League.)
Splendid! That's my opinion of the baseball outlook for 1916, not merely for the National league, but for every diamond organization in the country. Not since I have been connected with the great national game, either as player, rector or executive, have prospects been brighter for all concerned.

The mass of people in this country love the old game. During the past two years they have not shown it as much as in other years, but that was due to two things. One was the European war, which for a time, brought about a business depression. The other was the baseball war, which placed the affairs of baseball in a chaotic state.

But now all is changed. The country is enjoying prosperity greater than ever before in its history. The people have money—and they do not feel that in spending some of it for baseball they need sacrifice later to make up for the outlay.

Peaceful conditions in the baseball world means that the game itself will be from 20 to 40 per cent faster and better than it was during the past two years. The players realize now that they must play the game—and they will. They are going to put their whole hearts and souls into the task. There will be no shirking. The boys will be out there day after day, battling every inch of the way, not merely because they must play at full speed to retain their jobs, but because their hearts are back in their tasks again.

The baseball war brought about deplorable conditions. The so-called flirting of the Federals turned the heads of some of the players. Conditions were unsettled. But all is rosy now.

I look for one of the prettiest races the National league has ever known, and from what I hear, the American league will stage a fight equally as thrilling. Some of the clubs in our circuit that were somewhat weak last year have been strengthened. Every team has a chance for the pennant honors as the rival outfits prepare to toe the mark for the opening battle. Two or three of the clubs in the National league aren't conceded a chance by dopsters—but the unexpected usually happens in baseball. The Braves weren't conceded a chance in 1914. Nor were the Phillies in 1915. Yet both won out. History may repeat itself this year.

WOULD EQUAL 1914 RECORD

Fritz Maisel Hopes to Have More Than 76 Stolen Bases to His Credit at End of Season.

Fritz Maisel hopes to equal his 1914 record of 76 stolen bases in the coming campaign. Last year Maisel fell 26 behind his mark of the year before, but this was due to the fact that he had fewer opportunities to steal. "It seemed as if there was always somebody on second when I got to first," remarked Maisel in discussing his falling off. "I was as successful as in 1914, securing the number of times I started and the number of times that I was thrown out."

DIAMOND REMAINS THE SAME

Lot of Bunk Printed About Changes in Size—Few Pitcher's Plates Have Been in Wrong Location.

There is a lot of bunk being printed about changes in the size of the baseball diamond. As a matter of fact, the diamond hasn't been changed a particle. It is possible that a few diamonds have had the pitcher's plate wrongly located and that second base has not been stationed where it belongs, but these are the only corrections to be made.

STATE O.U.A.M. SUES KINGSTON WON PORT EWEN PEOPLE OPENING GAME

Wants Them to Turn Over $1,300 That Was in the Treasury When They Disbanded Their Lodge.

Supreme Court Justice Borst of Amsterdam, N. Y., has handed down a decision on a motion recently made before him to change the place of trial from Fulton county to Ulster county of the action brought by the State Council of New York, Order of United American Mechanics, against a number of residents of Port Ewen. The motion was made on behalf of the defendants by Amor Van Ethen, who has been retained by many of them, and was opposed by Fox Spaulding of the firm of Wendell & Spaulding of Port Ewen, who are attorneys for the State Council.

The suit against the Ulster county residents was begun some time ago, and is the result of the disbanding of the lodge, the defendants being the officers and members at the time of disbanding.

In the year 1896 a local branch of the Order of United American Mechanics was organized at Rondout and was known as Ulster County Council, No. 49. About nine years later the council was removed from Rondout to Port Ewen, where it continued in existence until the spring of 1914, when the members unanimously voted to dissolve the council and to surrender the charter. The local council therefore turned over its charter and all its books, regalia, private work, and other property to the State Council, but retained the funds in the treasury. The funds amounted to over $1,300 and the members of the Ulster County Council declined to turn over that amount or any part of it to the State Council.

Demand by the State Council for the funds was met by refusal on the part of the members of the Ulster County Council. The State Council claimed that it was entitled to such funds under a provision of the constitution of the order and the provisions of its by-laws relative to the disposition of property, etc., in the event of the disbanding of a local council. The State Council claims that the funds in the treasury of the local council are a trust fund to which it is entitled if a local council disbands. The latter claim is denied by the members of the former Ulster County Council, No. 49.

Cases of this character are rare, although there is said to have been a similar case which arose in Ulster county a number of years ago.

The venue of the action brought by the supreme council was laid in Fulton county, and on behalf of the defendants whom he represented Amor Van Ethen recently made a motion before Judge Borst at Amsterdam to change the venue from Fulton to Ulster county.

Judge Borst, in granting Mr. Van Ethen's motion, states in his opinion: "There are some facts stated in the papers from which it would appear that the defendants may each be required to attend the trial. This being so, to require from thirty to sixty defendants to leave the county of Ulster where the cause of action arose and where they reside to attend a trial in Fulton county, where evidently but one witness will be required on the part of the plaintiff ought to be avoided, if possible, and this fact coupled with the fact that defendants have at least four witnesses residing in Ulster county, whom they show will be necessary to attend for their defense, is sufficient reason for changing the place of trial to Ulster county."

The members of the former Ulster County Council against whom the action has been brought are: Hez. Hotaling, E. E. Hutchings, Elliot L. Hotaling, Fred Hyman, B. H. Hough, Henry E. McKean, L. Terpening, R. H. Schryver, C. DeGraff, E. V. Hotaling, E. A. Prink, George D. Broadhead, Ed. Bishop, H. Hyndman, M. Hamilton, George V. Fairbrother, J. N. Van Wagenen, George Lowe, George M. Neher, Charles Schubert, Roswell Sutton, George Low, E. H. Taylor, George Bigler, Ralph Ostrander, D. E. Proper, W. J. Irving, M. J. Van Keuren, M. Bell, James A. Seer, M. H. LeFever, George W. Brooks, H. I. Van Wort, N. Ayres, D. W. Benton, Ira Hyde, Elvin Hutchings, Otto Aldis, Jefferson Jackson, W. M. Stephenson, Jno. Lynn, Charles Hamilton, John Farnbeck, John Vogt, J. K. Terpening, W. J. Brewster, Warren K. Van Vleet, William H. Puls, A. H. Schryver, Henry Meyers, Charles Becker, William C. Kier, Fred Fox, C. E. Hood, Robert Walker, Edwin Hotaling, Herbert DuBois, Augustus Hotaling, E. Hutchings, Nathan Cole, Harold E. McKean, Jesse Freer, G. C. Robison, Edwin B. Freer, Charles H. Sutton, Harold Taylor, Beverly H. Sleight, Lyman Ellsworth, Jesse Contant, Richard Terpening, Wallace Schryver, Henry Clair, Frank Oldenbure, A. Wurts Taylor and Daniel R. Bigler.

The supreme council asks judgment against the above named defendants that they account for the sum of $1,325.35, together with the costs of the action.

Frangipan Cream Pie.

Cut three circular pieces of paste nine inches in diameter, place on baking sheet, prick with fork and bake. Put together with Frangipan cream, for which mix two-thirds cupful powdered sugar and one-third cupful flour add yolks of three eggs and one whole egg, slightly beaten; one-fourth teaspoonful salt and one cupful scalded milk and cook over hot water fifteen minutes. Add two tablespoonfuls butter, two tablespoonfuls macaroons (dried and rolled), two-thirds teaspoonful vanilla and two-thirds teaspoonful lemon extract.

A Skin Tonic.

Salt is finer for the skin than any other known tonic if properly used. The face should never be washed in salt water when it is not properly clean, for salt is in the nature of an astringent and will contract the pores. It is excellent for enlarged pores, and the solution will act as a veritable stimulant to the whole skin.

Exams.

On being asked how many persons were saved in Noah's ark one student replied, "We all of us were." The question, "Why does a blacksmith heat an iron bar before putting it on the wheel?" received from one boy who apparently thought it a "catch" question, the answer, "He doesn't."

JAPANESE GARDENS.

Their Aim is Always to Represent Nature in Miniature.

Every Japanese house of any pretensions must have a garden. The cost of one is invariably reckoned with the estimates for house building, being usually estimated at one-tenth the cost of the house. The Japan Magazine tells of the procedure:

When the Japanese landscape gardener gets the contract for a garden he first makes a model—that is, a miniature garden embodying every feature that the final product will have. The first thing to be done in laying out the garden is to select the place for the lake or pond and excavate it. The earth thus obtained is utilized for the construction of an artificial hill and also for a small island, both of these features being considered necessities. Next in importance is the placing of the stone lantern; then comes an artistic bridge to the island. Next comes the placing of trees, rocks and stones with due consideration for the appearance of the garden as a whole.

Japanese do not place much value on a new garden, age being of far greater importance. It is not until a few years have passed that the garden is considered at its best, for the stones and tree trunks must be moss covered and the whole must give the appearance of nature's rather than man's work.

The garden is not laid out according to any scientific plan. It is rather a matter of instinct and experience, the aim of the artist being to represent nature in miniature.

An Odd Turkish Superstition.

An odd Turkish superstition is as follows: If one finds a piece of bread lying upon the ground he must pick it up, kiss it and carry it until he finds a hole into which the bread can be inserted. To step upon a piece of bread or to leave it lying upon the ground is one of the unpardonable sins and dooms the offender to the third hell, where he is perpetually gored by an ox that has but a single horn that is in the center of his forehead.

Cleric Play.

The auditorium of the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street was filled to its capacity on Friday evening, when Mr. Walker's Bible class presented "In the Ferry House." Profiting by last year's experience when the class gave "The Rural School," in the lecture room which proved to be too small to hold the audience, this entertainment was given in the church. From the moment that the porter requested the ladies to remove their hats, to the close of the final chorus, "When You and I Were Young, Mazzye," the audience was kept on the alert and guessing as to who should be the next comer to the Perry House. Mrs. Hydecker (Miss Minnie Sleight) who always delights her audiences and her troupe of young sons were much in evidence. Greatly to the amusement of the audience, every character was sufficiently well taken to merit special mention, would space permit. The members of the class also showed their appreciation of the services of Mrs. Ford.

The members of the cast, by presenting her with a fine bouquet of flowers. The serving of ice cream and a social hour followed the entertainment, which the class has been asked to repeat.

Ben Potter's Proxy

It Proved to Be a False Friend

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Ben Potter was a cowboy down in that part of the western part of North America where the Mexicans have always been in evidence. Ben was as brave as a lion where a man adversary was concerned, but had a constitutional fear of the fair sex. A little gun play wouldn't faze him a bit, but to tell a woman he loved her was beyond the scope of his audacity. One day he came across a greaser who kept parrots for sale.

Ben Potter stood in front of the parrot's cage and poked a tentative finger at the beautiful green and yellow bird whose yellow markings edged with black added to its gorgeousness. "You're dead certain she can talk?" he demanded of the storekeeper.

"Kin a duck swim?" retorted the storekeeper testily.

"What kind of talk can she hand out? I don't want no swear words, mind, Dawson—it's for a lady—it's for my sister," said Ben laboriously striving to cover up the fact that the parrot was for Linda Day, who was not his sister and who he fervently hoped would never offer to be a sister to him.

"No swear words," chuckled Dawson. "Will you hear that?" he went on addressing the bird. "Tell the gentleman pretty things, Polly."

"I love you," croaked Polly, with a wicked glance at Ben.

Ben flushed hotly. If that was the sort of talk Polly indulged in she was just the bird Ben needed to convey the story of his tender but diffident passion to Linda Day.

The deal was concluded, and Polly and her cage were transferred to Ben Potter's hands. He arranged to leave them there until dark.

"I shan't be going back again till 9 o'clock," he said casually.

"There won't anybody know you're bought a hansom parrot if you sneak it home in the dark," said Dawson innocently.

"That's just what I'm calculating on, you idiot," snapped Ben coolly, as he turned and went down the street, his boots clicking on the board walk and the brim of his hat flapping in the breeze.

"I love you," chuckled Dawson as he shook a finger at Polly. "Oh, you Polly! And oh, you Ben Potter!"

It was after 9 o'clock when Ben Potter called for his parrot. He had bought a new blanket, which he wrapped around the big cage, leaving an opening at the top.

"Good night, Polly," he called down the opening.

"Get out!" growled Polly crossly. Dawson gave vent to an exaggerated yawn.

"I'm about closing up now," he muttered to hide a smile. "Hope you like the bird. If you get tired of her handing out that line of soft talk, why, you can teach her something else, you know."

"Sure thing," said Ben as he left the place.

As he went galloping home to the Twin Star ranch, the trail unwinding before him like a broad white ribbon, he held the cage on the pommel of his saddle and wondered what Linda Day would say to his strange gift.

"Gee whiz, I'm glad it's night," he muttered as he neared the ranch. Suddenly he paused and looked around at the moonlit spaces of the cattle range.

"Why not give it to her now?" he asked himself. "They'll sure hand me a line of jolly if they see this thing at the bunk house. Why, it might up and say it loved 'em."

He wheeled his horse and dashed down the trail, turning to the right when he reached the three cottonwoods that marked the cross trail leading to the Widow Day's ranch.

He was glad that the bunk house was dark and that the big dance in Red Spider had evidently drawn all the men away for the evening.

Polly writhed uncomfortably, cocked a glassy eye at her new owner and murmured throatily:

"Bye-bye! I'm going to bed now!" "How cunning!" cried Linda. "Poor Polly shall go in this nice dark corner, and tomorrow I will have a book placed for her in the window. It was very thoughtful of you, Mr. Potter." She glanced up at Ben's embarrassed face. His blue eyes looked at her wistfully, and his lips trembled as if words were eager to betray his love, but he was so very diffident, she thought regretfully, when he finally turned away and with a hurried good night made for the front door.

In the safe shadow of the yard where he had mounted his horse Ben called back the important message he had to deliver. His tone was elaborately careless.

"By the way, Mrs. Day," he flung over his shoulder, "that parrot can speak a few words, and what she says is—just what I think, only I can't find words to say it—you understand."

He could not see Linda's tender smile as she closed the door and went back to the living room.

"As if a goose couldn't understand," she murmured gleefully. "You great big, brave, bashful little boy!" This last remark was addressed to the small snapshot picture of Potter which she had hidden in her needlework. If Ben Potter had known about that picture he would have expired from very joy. He had left it there one evening, and when he inquired for it the widow had been unable to find it—even while she fumbled with trembling fingers in her work basket.

"Polly—Polly Potter!" laughed the widow joyously. "You've got to wake up and tell me that story tonight—understand? I can't wait another minute." And she gently withdrew the covering from Polly's cage and brought it into the bright light of the evening lamp.

It was five minutes before Polly awakened sufficiently to exercise her vocal powers.

"Polly," whispered Linda, her soft eyes shining and her sweet face aglow. "Polly, dear, what have you got to say to me?"

Polly, disgruntled because of this rude awakening from her slumbers, was in a diabolical temper.

"Want to say—eh? Want to say—eh? You're a lousy body—there's only one girl in the world for me and her name is—her name is—gr—gr—gr—gr!" wheezed Polly.

"What is her name—tell it to me, Polly, dear," coaxed Linda, eager to hear the sweetest story ever told, even through the medium of the strange proxy Ben Potter had chosen. "Tell me the name of the girl he loves!"

"Her name is—ha, ha, ha! Her name is Maud—there! Lead me to my little bed!" choked Polly, wrathfully. "Maud! I love you dearly—Maud—Maud—Maud! Where are you, dearie? I'm waiting for you—it's a great joke—joke—lat!"

Linda's eyes were full of tears. "You horrid thing!" she cried, "I'll not have you in the house, I thought he had taught you some—something else!"

"Oh, the deuce!" cried the parrot, impatiently. "Trouble all the time!"

Linda closed the window over the cage, blew out the light and went up to bed. The next morning she got up and wrote a note to Ben Potter.

"Please come and get your parrot," she wrote, crisply. "It is impossible for me to keep it."

It was a very much abashed and disconcerted cowpuncher who rode up to Linda's door the next evening.

Linda Day stood in the sitting room staring resentfully at the form of Polly, who was swinging in her cage.

"I'm sorry you don't like the bird," said Ben awkwardly. "What seems to be the matter?"

"Every—everything!" cried Linda, very near to tears.

"I guess I made a mistake," said Ben slowly, his heart sinking down and down in bitter despair. "You didn't like the message I sent you?"

Linda flashed an indignant glance at him.

"Of course it is a matter of perfect indifference to me whether you love a girl named Maud," she said coldly. "Maud! Maud who?" he demanded dazedly.

"Oh, Maudie," shrilled Polly airily. "I forgot to kiss you goodbye! You're the girl for me! I love you!"

LOFTY SAN MARINO.

The Only Nation in the World Without a Daily Paper.

San Marino is the smallest republic in the world and one of the most ancient, being over 1,000 years old. It is situated on a plateau 2,000 feet high, ten miles from the Adriatic sea and about sixty-five miles east of Florence. It is a walled city with watch towers and contains twenty-seven square miles.

The men quarry gray building stone, which is carried to the sea by oxen. The wine cellars are caves in the rock, and outside the openings tables are placed and food and wine served. The women cook over charcoal stoves in the open street or square and people buy.

In the evening, after the stagecoach from Rimini brings the mail, all gather at the postoffice, while some better reader than the rest reads the news from an outside newspaper, for the nation of San Marino is the only civilized one in the world without a daily paper.

The nation maintains a standing army of nineteen, increased to thirty in time of stress. The government is by twelve elders chosen by the people. All legal cases are settled by an outside justice, who serves for three years and is never re-elected.

There are 12,000 inhabitants. Time is divided into four periods of six hours each. No clock marks more than six hours, this custom following the ancient Vigiliae of the Romans. The tiny republic commands one of the most wonderful views in Italy.—New York Times.

TRAVELS OF THE ORANGE.

At One Time It, With All Else Yellow, Was Barred From Holland.

Oranges were grown in Spain and Italy for centuries before they made their way to this country.

The first recorded appearance of the fruit in England is in 1290, when a Spanish ship arrived at Portsmouth with a cargo of fruit, out of which the queen, Eleanor of Castile, purchased fifteen citrons and seven oranges. The next notice is in 1380, when pomegranates figured among the dishes at the coronation banquet of Henry IV. By the sixteenth century they had become common enough. In 1509 the lords of the star chamber had oranges served daily at dinner at a cost of twopenny a day. The first mention of their use as missiles occurs in the diary of Henry Machyn, who tells us that on May day of 1559 the revelers at the queen's palace at Westminster threw eggs and oranges at each other.

Oranges were for some years a prohibited fruit in Holland. When the Batavian republic was established the badge and color of the Stadtholder's family became so hateful to the popular party that not satisfied with expelling their prince, they passed a law forbidding the sale of oranges and carrots and ordering all persons who grew lilies or marigolds in their gardens to pluck up the plants and destroy them. This prohibition remained in force until 1806, when Napoleon made his brother Louis king of Holland.

Ode to the Giants:
You cannot live through on the fame
Of those days that have long gone by.
You've got to keep winning the game,
Or your popularity will die.

Starting the May Day only two western clubs are in the first division. They are the Cubs in third place and the Tigers tied with the Red Sox for first.

The Tigers used up 21 players against the Indians but the "war whoopers" slew them all.

Hal Chase is coming back to the popularity he used to enjoy. The Cincinnati fans are for him. He pitched hit yesterday and started the rally that beat the Pirates.

Six straight defeats for the Browns. Wonder if Fielder Jones wishes he was back in the northwest.

The Giants won. But it was only an exhibition. They defeated Syracuse.

AT WANAMAKER'S, NEW YORK

200,000 Pieces of A. Kreamer's Ware

At 40 Per Cent. Discount

To a woman who knows, this is perhaps the most astonishing piece of news in this newspaper tonight.

For a generation A. Kreamer's tinwares—and in later years, his copper, zinc, Russian iron and japanned wares—have been used in hundreds of thousands of homes all over the country.

It is the heaviest grade of its kind manufactured. It is the best wearing. One woman recently, in Washington, said that a Kreamer boiler she had was not entirely worn out, that it did not leak, but as she had used it for 20 years she thought it was about time to buy a new one.

Kreamer's prices have always been kept standard—except when some store cut the price on a few leaders using them as "baits." "Baits," you know, are always chosen from the best standard grades at standard prices well known to the people.

But here—for the first time—are full assortments of A. Kreamer's wares at 40 per cent. discount.

Not a few pieces, but 200,000 articles.

Not a few sizes, but all sizes.

Not a low price on one thing and a high price on another—but sensationally low prices on all pieces—40 per cent. lower than current rates.

The sale comes through the settlement of the A. Kreamer estate. We advanced the money to pay off certain bequests and to concentrate the business in the hands of the sons—and for the money took our pick of the brand-new wares in the Kreamer factory in Brooklyn.

$70,000 Worth for $42,000

200,000 pieces (the quantity justifies emphasis)—making over one hundred double truck-loads in hauling it to the store.

More than fifty men worked overtime two weeks in the Kreamer factory just to pack and ship the wares.

Here scores of people have been busy ticketing and placing them on display.

Especially for brides opening new homes we have made up two compact assortments—one article packed within another—and offer them at $5 each. These, as listed here, and single pieces illustrated, give an idea of the great saving—but only a personal visit will enable any one to comprehend the scope and importance of the sale.

Compare LIBERTY with the "Big Looking" Packages of Long Cut Tobacco!

NO Loose, Hard Stems Like This

LIBERTY comes only in long, silky shreds, because only long, unbroken leaf is used in making it.

That means LIBERTY is a real long cut.

And LIBERTY is absolutely free from loose, hard stems—they're picked out by hand.

That means LIBERTY is real tobacco.

LIBERTY packs right down into your pipe for a cool, slow-burning smoke. Or rolls into a wad of juicy sweetness for a husky, lasting, man-size chew.

LIBERTY is made of full-bodied, full-flavored Kentucky tobacco. And the ageing we give this rich leaf—up to five years—puts a satisfying relish into LIBERTY that just suits hearty chewers and smokers from the ground up.

When a man who knows a man's tobacco gives LIBERTY the once over he sticks to it for keeps. So will you.
